Some Things To Think About When Considering Adoption

- Dealing with addiction? Homeless?
- Will the birth father be present - emotionally, financially and physically?
- Experiencing domestic violence?
- Struggling to support other children in your care?
- Do you have a child in DFS custody?
- Are you pursuing education or a career?
- Too young or too old to parent?
- Not ready to parent?

Making an adoption plan allows you to take control of your situation and choose a life for your child that they deserve!

What if I change my mind? You cannot relinquish your parental rights until after birth.

Will my child think I don't love them? Research shows that most adopted children are very accepting and thankful for their birth mom's sacrifice.

My family doesn't support my decision. Family pressure is often one of the most difficult aspects of adoption. It is important not to allow others to influence your decision so you can make the best decision for you and your baby.

One of the most difficult parts of the journey is silencing all the outside voices and making the decision that no one else can make.
